

This proposed rules making will impact small local broadcasters extremely hard. It's hard enough to meet and keep up with the regulations we have now. By requiring the recording of all programing you are driving another nail in the coffin of the local hometown broadcaster (something the FCC once wanted, to meet the needs of the local community). These new regulations will not cause the overwhelming majority of the radio stations in the United Sates to change the content of their programing, they abide by the rules and have decent programing. What the commissions needs to do is focus on the complaints about those FEW broadcasters who are violating the indencey regulations.
